

Translating your web presence

When orienting your business activities to the international market it makes sense to make your web presence available in multiple languages. However it is time-consuming to firstly translate webpage after webpage and then to convert it back into HTML.

This is where Content Management (CMS) solutions can be advantageous. Many systems include an extension which enables the website translation to be carried out cost-efficiently whilst saving time. This is achieved through the export and import of the website content in a consistent format.

tolingo can also interpret various formats and give an instant indication of the price and time of the translation.

Information on translating various formats/systems.

- Translation and localisation of XML files
- HTML files can be uploaded into our cost calculator

The advantage of translating home pages at tolingo

Your translation will be assigned to one of our certified translators and translated for a reasonable price. Thanks to our large translator team, we are not only able to offer homepage translation into German, Spanish, English and French, but also into a further 18 languages.